THE allurements and charm of exploring among the books of the world, new and old, and of making fresh acquaintances among them, is appealing to more and more busy men and women every year. New and delightful books of fiction, travel, biography, science, and literary art are constantly appearing, and to appreciate such books and to be familiar with them is universally recognized as the test and proof of culture.

IN these crowded days, the average man or woman, while reading through as many as possible of the books which appeal most strongly, will welcome an opportunity to read brief digests of many more, and to have, at least, intelligent descriptions and criticisms of all the outstanding works of well-known writers, or authors who have suddenly sprung into the limelight, so that it may be easy to converse with other persons of culture and to select with greater satisfaction the books they wish to own or give to friends.

THE Literary Digest INTERNATIONAL BOOK REVIEW will provide all this information concerning books published in this country and all important books issued in England, France, Italy, Germany, Spain, and elsewhere. It will give, impartially, the news of books the world over, recognizing appreciatively such reality of interest as may lie beneath whatever guise, whether of language or literary method. Books of every class that have a vital bearing on contemporary life and literature will be reviewed by the highest authorities available, usually by critics in the country in which the books are published.

NOT only is the literary art of a people expressed in their books, but the politics, the business, the science, the military purposes, the religion, and the industrial and social life and methods of peoples and governments are revealed to the world through the medium of books. The Literary Digest INTERNATIONAL BOOK REVIEW, therefore, will be, in reality, a world review of national and popular purposes, aspirations, ideals, and movements. It will reveal the likes and dislikes, the rivalries, and the struggles of individuals and classes. It will thus interpret the trend of the times and point with prophetic finger to the future.
